

SOMETHING THAT BLEEDS

So quiet in your mind
Maybe even pleased
Until existence touched you
And brought you to your knees

You got nothing from your father
And nothing from your mother
Nothing but inherited hate
For the others

All your escalators kept going down
And I was right behind you

You were just another bridge
That they could cross or burn
Just something that bleeds
As far as they're concerned

You lost your home
Your future and your name
Only the darkness
In your hearts remains

All your escalators kept going down
And I was right behind you

I couldn't leave you
I know I needed to
But at the time you had the only heart
That I could bleed through

The lines around your eyes
Can't be blamed on happiness
Guess that's why I love you
Because you're such a mess

It's not about your looks,
Your smile, or the things you do
It's not your lack of evil
But the tragedy in you

All your escalators keep going down
And I am right behind you

I'll never leave you
I know I need to
But we both know you have the only heart
That I can bleed through
